Beautifully fresh and vibrant with a strong core of grapefruit and lemon. The flavours are long, delicately juicy and tight. Hints of creamy oak add gentle complexity. A lovely, well-made wine.

No doubting the region, even if the wine is at the bigger end of the spectrum. Lots of white peach, nectarine, fig and balancing acidity, the oak relatively restrained.

Pale straw in colour with a yellow rim. Nose a bit shy and restrained with hints of white stonefruit, citrus, and melon; some malolactic fermentation characters evident. Palate is quite textural, long, and slightly creamy with fresh, zesty acidity, toasty oak and a slight butter note.

White peach, pink grapefruit and the barest hint of grilled nuts, likely oak-derived, provide all the flavour needed without compromising the finesse of a lovely chardonnay. Drink to 2023.

a perfect pit-stop tasting

The best wine is a Pacha Mama Yarra Valley (Upper Yarra and Coldstream) Chardonnay 2015 which has a lovely soft lime-and-butter nose, quite elegant.

Bright, light to medium yellow colour; cashew nut aromas, with a subtle patina of toastiness. The palate is savoury and almost salty, with a nice, dry tangy mouth-feel. Delicious citrusy flavours and acidity are cleansing and refreshing on the finish and aftertaste. Drink 2015 to 2022.

Whispers of this and whispers of that. Flows effortlessly through the mouth but if you really want to look, there are complexities to be found. Good way for a wine to be. Flavours of pear, apple, lactose (minor), and bacony oak. Just, all round, good.

Modern, fresh, crisp chardonnay with enough flavour to satisfy. Mid-intensity flavours of dry pear, apple, nectarine and fennel, with bacony oak and lactose notes whispering throughout. An easy wine to recommend.

This Yarra Valley chardonnay continues the brand's good early form. It has enough fruit, enough funk, enough acid and enough length. It does the basic things well, you could say. Green melon, pear, chalk, spent cap gun pods and apple flavours. It's still smoothing itself out on the finish but it's all coming together nicely.

Jon Helmer - Surf Coast Times, March 20, 2014

No blurred lines here. In fact, it's quite a clean, well structured style of chardonnay loaded with full flavours of stone fruit, mineral and citrus while the palate shows textured richness all harmoniously balanced right through to the finish.
